James Van Reenen gave the group a walk through of the building to point out needs, including HVAC, removing overhead tile, and insulation. The grant, which is due April 14th, requires details of specific projects that support environmental and social justice. While much detail is required, nothing is set in stone at this point. The Council members and UDB were happy with the meeting.

Leppanen explained Sunrise was hired five months ago to clean up some loose ends from the BSA. She and Nelson met with Marx Powell to gain insight into the reports we have received and she has put the work on pause and not send information to the State until we understand the priority dating of the water rights which are based on 1976 but could change to 2023 if new information is sent in.
